ON GROWING CLEMATIS

SOIL. A rich well-drained loam, loosened by the addition of sand or peat moss, is best. Make certain that the collar of the plant is set 2 to 3 inches below the surface of the soil. Firm the soil well around the roots. Water frequently in dry weather.

LOCATION. A partially shaded location with 5 to 6 hours of sunshine is ideal. If planted in full sun provide a cool root-run by a good summer mulch of some loose material such as peat, straw, rotted manure, etc.

FERTILIZING. Well-rotted manure is preferred with any well-balanced plant food as a good second. Work it well into the soil without disturbing the roots. Use a little lime occasionally.

TRELLIS. Provide a support at once—a trellis, wire netting, old stumps, low shrubs, or stone walls.

WINTER MULCH. With fall planting of Clematis use a mulch of straw, leaves, or peat moss for the first winter to prevent the soil from freezing and thawing, which sometimes damages the stems if they are unprotected. Mice and rabbits may be kept from eating the tops by hilling the soil up around the stems or by putting small screens around them. A winter mulch is cheap protection for Clematis any time.

Clematis Coccinea Hybrids (Co)

A truly distinct group with flowers of trumpet-, bell- and urn-like forms. The plants are medium in height and bloom in summer and autumn, the flowers appearing successively on summer shoots.

Duchess of Albany. Bright pink, trumpet-shaped flowers. Date of Bloom: July, Oct. Each flower: $2.00

Texensis. Urn-shaped flowers of reddish rose, with yellow center. Long-haired seed clusters. July, Oct. 1.00

Clematis Florida Hybrids (Fl)

These varieties are noted for their profuse bloom in early summer, reaching a height of 8 to 10 feet. The flowers are produced on old or ripened wood. It is necessary to remove only dead and weak growth when pruning in late February or March.

Duchess of Edinburgh. A superb double, pure white form. Fine grown on a pillar. June, July. $1.25

Clematis Jackmani Hybrids (Ja)

These large-flowered climbing forms produce their bloom in summer and early autumn successively on new and summer growth. The free-blooming plants reach a height of 10 to 15 feet. They need to be pruned in early spring.

Comtesse de Bouchard. A pleasing shade of pinkish rose; petals deeply veined. June, July. $1.50

Crimson Star. Rich sparkling red with no purple tones. Very vigorous and free flowering. June, Oct. 1.50

Gipsy Queen. Velvety dark violet-purple flowers of good size. June, Oct. 1.25

Jackmani. Perhaps the most familiar of all the Clematis hybrids, this old favorite is noted for its great vigor and its abundant violet-purple bloom. Rapid, vigorous growth. June, Oct. 1.25

Jackmani rubra. The well-shaped flowers are an unusually rich red. June, Oct. 1.50

Jackmani superba. Noticeably large flowers of deep violet-purple. June, Oct. 2.00

Mme. Baron-Veillard. Warm lavender flowers of moderate size, carried in generous clusters. The latest of its class to bloom. July, Oct. 1.25

Mme. Edouard Andre. Dark purplish red, with rounded petals. Reaches only 7 feet in height but blooms abundantly. June, Oct. 1.25

Mrs. Cholmondeley. Large, open flowers of wisteria-blue, carried in profusion. June, Oct. 1.25

The President. Decidedly rich reddish plum-violet. Very thrifty grower with 10-foot vines. June, Oct. 1.50

Clematis Lanuginosa Hybrids (La)

Often spoken of as the woolly-leaved Clematis, the original form came to us from China almost a hundred years ago. These climbing forms produce large flowers in summer and autumn, usually on short lateral summer shoots. The flowers are well dispersed on the plants, which reach a height of 10 to 12 feet.

Fairy Queen. The pale flesh-pink coloring is accentuated with brighter bars. Date of Bloom: June, Oct. $1.25

Henryi. A familiar variety with unusually large white flowers often 8 inches across. Grows about 8 feet tall. June, Oct. 1.25

Lady Caroline Neville. Bluish lavender with mauve bars. Blooms freely. June, Oct. 1.25

Lady Northcliffe. Deep lavender with bright blue tints. June, Oct. 1.25

Lanuginosa candida. A pure white flower with a white center. June, Oct. 1.25

Lawsoniana. Blue flushed with mauve; broad, overlapping petals. Strong growth. June, Oct. 1.25

Lord Neville. Dark plum color with a white center. Attractively formed bloom of exquisite color. June, Oct. 1.25

Nelly Moser. Mauve with red bars. Profuse in bloom and vigorous in growth. June, Oct. 1.50

Prins Hendrik. Azure-blue flowers often 7 inches in diameter; ruffled petals. Lasts well when cut. June, Sept. 2.00

W. E. Gladstone. Perhaps best described as heavenly blue. June, Oct. 1.25

William Kennett. A large flower in the deep lavender range. A sturdy grower. June, Oct. 1.25

Clematis Viticella Hybrids (Vi)

The original form was introduced from Spain nearly four hundred years ago. Because the plants produce their flowers on summer shoots they can be pruned vigorously in early spring. The blooms are decidedly large, appearing in summer and autumn on plants 10 to 15 feet in height.

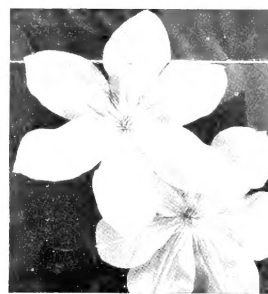

Huldine. A translucent white variety with mauve-pink markings. Date of Bloom: July, Oct. $1.25

Ville de Lyon. An abundance of carmine-red blooms with darker center. June, Oct. 1.25

(Li) LADY NORTHCLIFFE. $1.25 each

(La) W. E. GLADSTONE. $1.25 each

(Sp) PANICULATA. $1.00 each

(Ja) JACKMANI SUPERBA. $2.00 each

Clematis Species (Sp)

For the most part, the species and varieties listed here are small-flowered types producing their flowers in summer and autumn, usually on summer shoots; hence they can be pruned vigorously in early spring.

Crispa. Usually called Marsh or Curly Clematis. The bell-shaped flowers are similar to those of C. texensis. Color is a dark blue-purple which becomes paler at the waxy margins. 8 to 10 ft. July, Aug. $1.00

Macropetala. This native of northern China and Siberia is usually called the Downy Clematis. The 3-inch flowers are of exquisite lavender coloring with two rows of sepals, and the whole flower is covered with down. 8 to 10 ft. June, Aug. 1.25

Montana alba. A white form of the great Indian Clematis. It grows 10 to 15 feet in height. May, June 1.25

Montana rubens. The rosy red flowers turn pink with age. Pruning should be limited to the removal of dead wood only. 10 to 15 ft. May, June 1.25

Montana undulata. Soft mauve-pink. A real treasure. 10 to 15 ft. May, June 1.25

Mrs. Robert Bryden. Pale watery blue flowers in clusters characterize this vigorous new hybrid. 15 to 18 ft. June, Oct. 1.25

Paniculata. Quantities of small, fragrant, white flowers; star shaped. Very popular and widely grown. 15 to 18 ft. Sept., Oct. 1.00

Recta mandschurica. A hybrid form with larger white flowers than the type, loosely spaced. 3 to 4 ft. June, July 1.00

Spooneri rosea. An abundance of deep apple-blossom-pink flowers on plants which reach 10 to 15 feet. A great favorite in English gardens. May, June 1.50

Tangutica obtusiuscula. A curiously interesting yellow-flowered form with tiny lantern-like blooms. Plants are unusually vigorous, reaching 15 to 20 feet in height. At home climbing over a rock. July, Oct. 1.00

Plant VINES FOR SHADE and BEAUTY

CLIMBING plants have an important place in every well-planned garden. Having grown the Clematis hybrids for many years and a large number of other kinds of flowering vines, we have come to realize the wide use to which they can be adapted.

Many garden makers think of flowering vines merely as useful plants to screen unsightly areas. We like to think of them as rich, verdant masses of foliage to embellish doorways, porches, pergolas and arbors. In gardens, climbing plants often serve to make a pleasing transition between the house and the garden, or between large trees and small groups of shrubs. More rampant climbers can be used to grow over old tree stumps.

Many of our climbing plants, in addition to interesting foliage and showy flowers, have unusual seed-pods. Both the flowers and the fruits offer unlimited possibilities for indoor decoration.

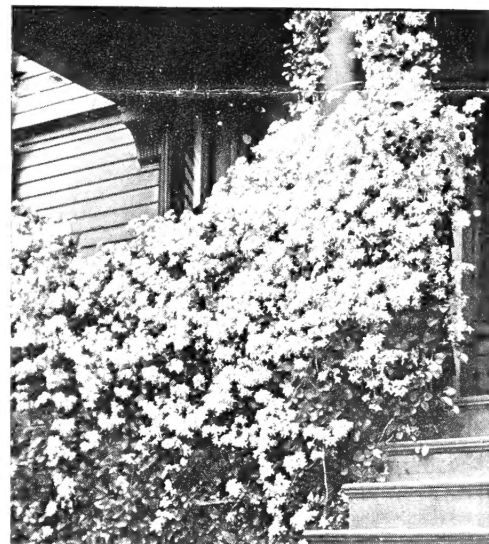

Climbing plants can often be used to solve the problem of ground-covers in difficult areas. Often where there are outcroppings of rock, such climbing plants as Honeysuckle (in all its forms), Euonymus and Bittersweet can be introduced to clothe bare areas.

Flowering vines trained on arbors and pergolas can often frame an interesting vista which can be enjoyed by the home-owner or the passerby. In summer, climbing plants add to the interest of the garden and often serve as a pleasing background for shrubs, perennials, and annuals. Walls and wire fences make admirable supports for this valuable group of plants.

PLANT Clematis NOW

AT LAST the Clematis hybrids are getting their share of attention in the garden world. Although many varieties were known in this country in the 90's, they were forgotten for some curious reason. It is only within the last few years that garden makers have been made to realize the beauty and the value of this great plant family.

No group of climbing plants is more distinctive for its wide color range, its variety of forms, and its decorative possibilities. To be sure, the Clematis is a regal plant but it need not have a spacious setting. In fact, its greatest charm is the pleasing suggestion of informality which it lends to pergolas, trellises, arbors, fences and old tree stumps.

The blooming dates given here are based on observations made here at Fairport in the western part of New York State. As with most plants, the first display of bloom is more profuse than the autumn display. It is important to realize that some varieties produce blooms on new wood and some on old wood. Accordingly, we are presenting the flowers in groups according to type.

Clematis – grown in pots

POTTED specimens of Clematis can be used as decorative features on trellises, porches, and patios. In fact, there are many small gardens where potted plants can be used to great advantage.

A 6-inch pot is large enough to hold an average-sized plant, and a mixture of 3 parts gritty loam and 1 part leafmold or lime is usually satisfactory. Of course, drainage must not be neglected, and moderately firm potting suits the plants best.

To protect the crown of the plant, a bamboo cane, a wire trellis, or a wooden frame of some sort should be used so that the plants will have ample support.
